Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurA research project on homicidal fantasies...A murdered woman in the largest university in Ireland...Does a psychology students thesis hold the key to catching a killer? Adam Twohig is in his final year of Psychology at University College Dublin. He never settled into the college lifestyle, never plugged into the social scene, and never excelled at his studies. Which is why hes puzzled when Greg Taylor comes to him looking for help with his thesis. Greg is studying the homicidal fantasies of UCD students, getting hundreds of written accounts of students darkest, murderous desires. When high-profile Entertainments Officer Christine Harvey is savagely murdered, the investigating detective wants access to his data. At first Adam thinks that the police are clutching at straws, but another murder on campus draws him deeper into the investigation. The secrets buried in Gregs data force Adam into an unlikely alliance between the Irish police and two FBI agents on the hunt for a serial killer, and put him and his friends in the sights of a murderer whose depravity seems to stand outside everything Adam knows about human
